Paper wrappers. Rafael Antonio Caldera Rodríguez (1916-2009) was both the 56th and 63th President of Venezuela from 1969 to 1974 and again from 1994 to 1999. His election to the presidency in 1969 was followed by the first peaceful transfer of power from one party to another in Venezuela's history. Highly educated, a professor of sociology at UCV, and author of numerous books and papers, Caldera was a cofounder of the social Christian party COPEI, with which he later broke, but was elected again without its affiliation shortly after the 1992 coup attempts led by Hugo Chávez, whom he pardoned and who succeeded him as President in 2000. All items are first editions, in wrappers, varying from 16mo to quarto, and by Caldera unless noted. A few in English or dual language. Two thirds are held by three or fewer institutions, while 9 not at all, as noted by OCLC. A detailed description is available upon request.

33. ESCUELA MILITAR DE VENEZUELA. El poder de la idea democrática. Caracas: [Escuela Militar de Venezuela], 1964. 120 pp. 16mo. White paper wrappers. First edition. The Military Academy of Venezuela was founded in 1810 and underwent a rigorous transformation in the early 1960s as did Venezuelan politics after the ouster of military dictator Pérez Jiménez in 1958. The major political parties signed the Punto Fijo Pact and the military tried to inculcate its officers with democratic ideas, which appeared to have taken since Rafael Caldera managed to come to power in 1969 through a democratic election. A document covering the same general idea was published in Brazil a year earlier under the auspices of Rockefeller Brothers Fund, so it is most likely this Venezuelan publication, whose chapter headings could have been taken from a course in American political science, was greatly influenced by the U.S. whose activities in Latin America were at a peak. Rare. OCLC, COPAC, and the online catalogues of Latin American libraries locate no copies. Very good or better, small tears at head and tail of spine. [43383] $100
